Finn's
Grumpy Day

© 2026 Md. Jubair Hassan Miraz
All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise, without the prior written permission of the author.

Illustrations created using AI tools and edited by the author to create the final artwork.

This book is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places, and incidents are either the product of the author's imagination or used fictitiously. Any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead, or actual events is purely coincidental.

Finn woke up grumpy. His tail was all fluffed the wrong way, and his blanket was twisted in knots. "I do not like today!" he grumbled.

Glow zoomed in. "Good morning, Finn!" But Finn turned away. "Go away, Glow." Glow's little light went dim.

Stomp, stomp, stomp! Finn marched out into the meadow and kicked a pebble. It did not make him feel better at all.

"Hoo, Finn," said Barnaby the owl from the tall oak. "You look like a storm cloud." "I am a storm cloud," said Finn.

"Let us try something," said Barnaby. "Smell the flower. Now blow out the candle." Finn took a big, slow breath in.

Again, and again. Each breath made the storm cloud smaller, until it floated away. Finn felt calm and light.

Finn ran back to find Glow. "I am sorry I was grumpy," he said. Glow glowed bright as the sun. "Hug?" "Hug!"

Soon Finn, Glow, and Barnaby shared a sweet berry picnic. Grumpy days can end with a great big smile.

The End