Today was Finn’s first day of school. His tummy felt wiggly. He held his little lunch basket tight.

“What if nobody likes me?” asked Finn. Glow flew beside him. “I will come with you to the door,” she said.

In the school clearing, Miss Hazel the hedgehog rang her little bell. Ding, ding! “Welcome, Finn!”

Finn sat on a mossy stump. He drew a big orange sun with a crayon. “What a beautiful sun!” said Miss Hazel.

Next came story time. Miss Hazel held up a big book. Finn listened and listened. His tummy did not feel wiggly at all.

At lunch, Finn shared his sweet berries. Glow came to say hello. “School is fun!” said Finn.

Then it was singing time. Finn sang the loudest of all. Miss Hazel clapped and clapped. Finn forgot to be shy.

After school, Finn skipped all the way home. “Can I go again tomorrow?” he asked Glow. Glow twinkled. “Of course!”
